Anger Management Groups for Children

The Anger Management Group is designed to teach children and adolescents the skills that they will need to better understand their feelings and express their anger in healthy ways. Anger is an emotion like any other, and in order to express it in a healthy way, we must first recognize and acknowledge its presence. Once we have done that, we can then move on to learning cognitive behaviour therapy techniques to reframe the thoughts that led to the anger. And, we can learn alternative ways to release anger (e.g. relaxation techniques; visualizations; physical activity).

During the group sessions, we will be teaching and rehearsing appropriate anger management techniques, and there will be assigned work for practice throughout the week. The group sessions will focus on:

- Identification, differentiation, and appropriate expression of feelings
- Learning how to self-monitor rising feelings of anger and frustration, and how to decrease the build-up of feelings
- Learning communication and active listening skills
- Self-control development
- Self-esteem enhancement
- Practicing learned techniques at home and school

If your child is new to the practice, we would like to schedule an individual session with parent and child in order to formulate personal goals for your child.

If your child has already been assessed by Mind Matters Clinic, an individual appointment may not be necessary. The cost of the individual session is $205.00, and can be billed in the parent's name.
