Adapting to ADHD/ Organizational Skills Groups for Children and Teens Ages 8-16

THE FOCUS OF THESE GROUPS WILL BE TO HELP YOUNGSTERS WHO HAVE SYMPTOMS OF ATTENTION DEFICIT HYPERACTIVITY DISORDER (ADHD) DEVELOP COMPENSATORY SKILLS IN THE AREAS OF IMPULSE CONTROL, ATTENTION AND CONCENTRATION, AND, ORGANIZATIONAL SKILLS.

SOME OF THE SKILLS THAT WE LEARN INCLUDE:

- organizing your day and your home/school living spaces
- learning methods to retrieve forgotten information/lost items
- developing better problem-solving skills
- acquiring strategies to minimize restlessness and hyperactivity
- developing better attention and concentration
- developing stronger impulse control
- learning about personal strengths and weaknesses, and how to use one's strength to compensate for weakness

Coping With ADHD/Organizational Skill Groups

Organizational skills are the rate limiting factor to success at school, work, and in one's personal life. Many children are not naturally inclined towards organizing their space or thinking about how to act in an efficient manner. Due to a long history of being unable to succeed at tasks which require organization and problem-solving, these children are frequently overwhelmed, and feel defeated before they even try.

Our groups are designed to teach children and adolescents the importance of organization, and some of the keys to being successful at it. We will also try to impart upon your child that there is no problem so big that they cannot solve, and to give them a few techniques to begin the problem-solving process.
